Summary of Authority for Publications Listed

Authority for CIA publication of current intelligence items from NSCID #3, paragraph b (2), which states: "The CIA and the several agencies shall produce current intelligence necessary to meet their own internal needs or external responsibilities."

Authority for OOI publication of current intelligence of critical significance is implied in CIA Regulation 50-190 "CIA Watch - Critical Information" which defines critical information and assigns responsibility to the Assistant Director for Current Intelligence for maintaining a continuous CIA Watch and for "making appropriate arrangements with the Office of the Director for officials to be contacted . . . in connection with information of the type governed by paragraph 6 of NSCID #1 and other information believed to be of sufficient importance to warrant the Director's attention." The definition of critical information includes information indicating that "conditions have arisen which may rapidly develop into an enlargement of a national emergency, endanger national security, or otherwise require urgent executive or military action."

CIA Regulation 51-550, paragraph 5, states that: "The categories listed below are reserved exclusively for documents being published under them:

(4) Situation Summary."

This Regulation, paragraph 5 b, further authenticates the use of publication titles:

- (3) Current Intelligence Review or Weekly
- (4) Current Intelligence Digest
- (5) Current Intelligence Bulletin

Regular Publications

1. Situation Summary

The Situation Summary was published by authority of a request of the White House for a weekly roundup of all intelligence bearing on the Korean War together with indications of Soviet Communist intentions elsewhere in the world and was first issued in July 1950. This obligation was assumed and continued by OGI at the request of the Director, General Smith.

2. Daily Publication

A current intelligence presidential daily was authorized by direction of the White House and was published by OGI as the "Daily Summary." When OGI was formed, the Director assigned responsibility for this to OGI, and requested that it present a comprehensive roundup of current intelligence. The name was changed to the "Current Intelligence Digest," with the edition going to the White House carrying only selected items being called "The Current Intelligence Bulletin."

3. Weekly Issues

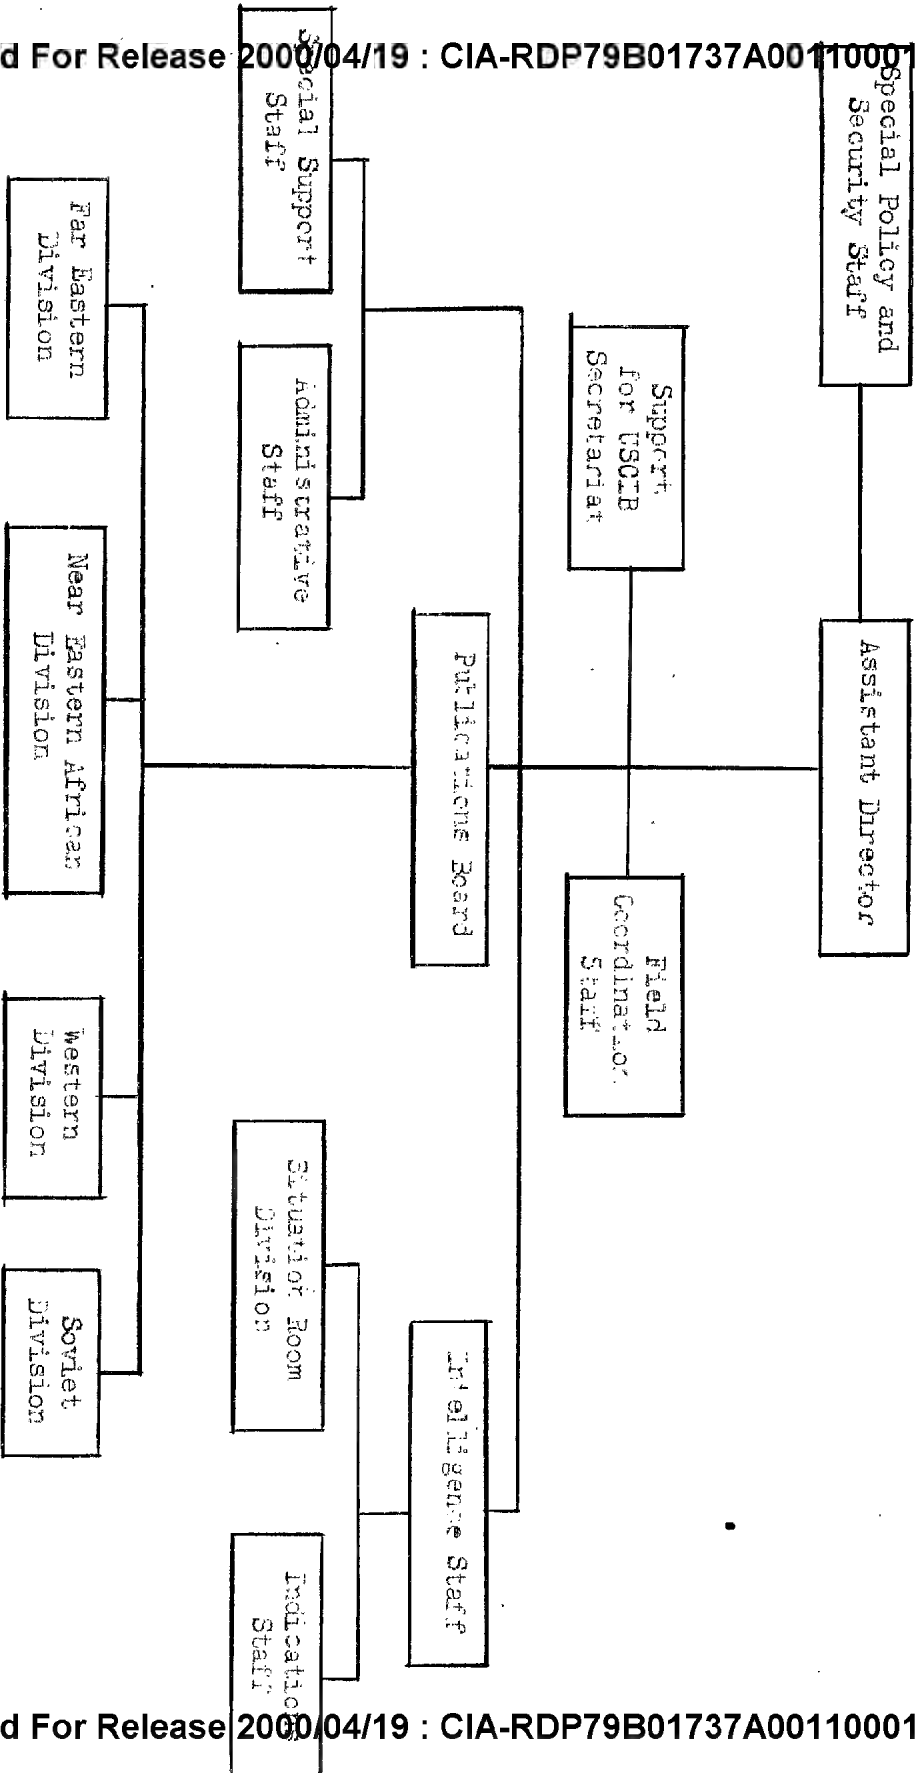

The authority for the Weekly stems from the request of the Executive Secretary, NSC, for a weekly to supplement the daily production with a more comprehensive treatment of trends.

Special Purpose Publications

All special purpose publications were authorized by individual requests of the Office of the Director, or of the Deputy Director, Intelligence.

OFFICE OF CURRENT INTELLIGENCE

FUNCTIONS AND ACTIVITIES:

The Office of Current Intelligence is charged with the responsibility for producing current intelligence on an all-source basis for the secure handling of certain special information available only to this Office, and for rendering current intelligence support to the Director of Central Intelligence and his Senior Representative abroad, to the National Security Council, the President and other high-level recipients. The Office is also responsible for maintaining and supporting the USCIB Secretariat and the Field Coordination Staff serving the Deputy Director (Intelligence).

In matters relating to special intelligence, OGI has responsibility for negotiating procurement, insuring security, arranging maximum exploitation and use, and carrying out interdepartmental and international liaison. Five special intelligence centers in CIA are controlled by this Office, in each of which are delegated or detailed elements of other CIA offices whose needs extend to the exploitation of all-source information available in OGI. The Assistant Director, as a member of USCIB, renders staff assistance and represents the Director of Central Intelligence, who is Chairman of USCIB, in policy matters relating to the handling of certain unique and sensitive material.

Assistant Director

The Assistant Director of Current Intelligence is responsible for the supervision and administration of the Office of Current Intelligence, including, primarily production of all-source current intelligence, consulting as appropriate with other offices and agencies, providing an all-source situation room for the Director of Central Intelligence and other authorized officials, maintaining the Agency Duty Officer Watch and alert United States officials concerned in the event of receipt of critical information, and performing special functions as specified by the Director of Central Intelligence.

Executive Direction and Policy

Special Policy and Security Staff

The Special Policy and Security Staff represents and advises the Assistant Director in matters of liaison and interdepartmental coordination bearing on special information. It assists in planning with regard to development, exploitation, sanitization, disguise, and operational use of such special intelligence, and provides representation on committees concerned therewith. STATSPEC

Special Support Staff

Both within the special intelligence field and as applied to collateral materials, the Special Support Staff coordinates the activities of OCI production elements and of the special center components of other Offices of CIA. It provides operational assistance in the establishment, coordination, integration, and definition of requirements. It initiates collection actions based thereon, and processes requests for materials available through other activities. It distributes or disseminates both information and intelligence issues, and controls sensitive distribution lists, and operates a special officer-courier system for sensitive materials. Substantive and statistical assessment is accomplished within this Staff in order to afford guidance to all participating activities. The CIA Watch Office for off-duty-hour facilities and alerting media is operated by this Staff.

Administrative Staff

The Administrative Staff acts for the Assistant Director in matters of personnel, career service, management, budget and finance, training, emergency planning, and logistics.

Intelligence Production

Intelligence Staff

OFFICE OF CURRENT INTELLIGENCE

ACCOMPLISHMENTS AND OBJECTIVES:

During FY 1953 OCI broadened its current intelligence support within CIA to provide increased service to Senior Representatives abroad, and extended its external support by providing current intelligence to the Presidential candidates and, after the inauguration, to the White House Staff and, through the Director of Central Intelligence, to the President and the National Security Council on a weekly basis. The Office has increased dissemination of its five daily issues from 638 to 674, its two weekly issues to three with dissemination from 205 to 246, and has initiated the production of intelligence notes in issues as they occurred, totalling about 350 for the year, or 234,000 copies of OCI publications issued annually, not including many oral briefings on timely subjects.

In addition, OCI now provides Secretariat services for USCIB, Field Coordination Staff functions for the DD/I offices, and current intelligence support in the field [REDACTED] for the Senior Representatives.

25X1A

25X1A

OCI has strengthened its watch on critical information, both by doubling the strength of its Watch Office and by participating directly in the deliberations of the IAC Watch Committee.

The Office has handled daily, 15,000 copies of some 2,200 separate items of information from all available sources, on an around-the-clock-alert basis, producing an average of 60 items of finished intelligence for issue each day and a large residue of research information bearing on further evaluations.

During the year, research projects were initiated relative to the critical events associated with the changing situation in Soviet Russia following the death of Stalin.

The objectives for the current and budget years, in addition to maintaining as high a quality of current intelligence output as possible will be to consolidate activities with a view to improving quality of product and dependability of intelligence support rendered the planners, policy-makers, and operators of government.

The emphasis will be upon increased competence, training, and service.

OFFICE OF CURRENT INTELLIGENCE

STATEMENT OF CURRENT FUNCTIONS & ACTIVITIES

The Office of Current Intelligence is charged with the responsibility for producing current intelligence on an all-source basis, including certain sensitive information available only to this Office, and with disseminating such current intelligence to the National Security Council, the President, and other high-level recipients.

In matters relating to its exclusive sensitive material, OCI has responsibility for negotiating procurement, insuring security, arranging maximum exploitation and use, and carrying out interdepartmental and international liaison. A special center is operated by this Office, wherein are physically conjoined with its own activities, delegated or detailed elements of other CIA offices whose needs extend to the unique materials available through OCI. The Assistant Director renders staff assistance and represents the Director, Central Intelligence, in policy matters relating to the unique and sensitive material of cognizance.

SECRET

ACCOMPLISHMENTS & OBJECTIVES

In meeting its responsibility for producing current intelligence on an all-source basis, OCI now publishes ten series of reports of various security classifications. Five of these are issued daily, three weekly, and two from time to time as required. Approximately 4,485 copies of all reports are disseminated weekly throughout the intelligence community. Additional current intelligence data are often prepared for use by the Director, Central Intelligence, in extraordinary briefings of the President and the National Security Council and in special presentations to Congressional Committees. Further, OCI has established a Situation Room where through the use of graphic media and verbal presentations periodic briefings are given by OCI to the Director, Central Intelligence, his Deputies and Assistants, and key intelligence personnel of the Government. Other CIA Offices participate in these briefings routinely.

OCI has established operations within the Armed Forces establishment for the purpose of exploitation at the source of sensitive intelligence information within its cognizance. Drawing on other Offices for personnel qualified within their respective areas of activity, OCI has provided coordination and central direction of the effort.

As the world situation shifts emphasis, it is the objective of OCI not only to keep pace by re-examining its emphasis in its publications and briefing media, but actually to remain one step ahead of developments by discovering indications of intentions and introducing presentations germane to the changing situation. To this end it is an objective of this Office to exploit fully all sources of information, utilizing to the greatest extent possible existing collection agencies. It is the plan to introduce new bodies and new operations to the minimum extent feasible for the accomplishment of this objective.

OFFICE OF CURRENT INTELLIGENCE

ACTIVITY DESCRIPTION

ADMINISTRATIVE STAFF:

The Administrative Staff acts in an executive capacity for the Assistant Director in matters of management, budget and finance, training, emergency planning, and logistics. It maintains a personnel office for the conduct of traditional and appropriate personnel affairs. Its security staff controls physical, personnel and operational security, whether of standard Agency significance or of special scope as dictated by sensitive areas of operation. Its reproduction facilities are operated for the sole purpose of insuring the safe reproduction of highly sensitive materials on a time-value basis. It coordinates and negotiates logistical needs and operations of whatever kind indicated.

POLICY & LIAISON STAFF:

The Policy and Liaison Staff represents and advises the Assistant Director in all matters of policy-level liaison and interdepartmental liaison bearing on OCI's special and sensitive materials. It assists in policy planning with regard to development, exploitation and operational use of such materials, and provides representation on committees and in areas where special materials are of chief concern.

SPECIAL SUPPORT DIVISION:

Both within the sensitive field, and as applies to collateral materials, the Special Support Division coordinates the activities of all OCI production elements and of the conjoined divisions of other Offices of CIA. It provides operational assistance in the establishment, coordination, integration, and definition of requirements. It initiates collection actions based thereon, and processes requests for materials available through other activities, avoiding duplication either of facilities or action. It distributes or disseminates both information and intelligence, and controls sensitive distribution lists, and operates a special officer courier system for sensitive materials. Substantive and statistical assessment is accomplished within this division in order to afford guidance to all participating activities. The CIA Watch Office for off-duty hour facilities and alerting media is operated by this division.

INTELLIGENCE STAFF:

The Intelligence Staff exercises substantive policy direction over the processing, production, and issuance of current intelligence on an all-source basis. It makes final determination and authorizes the publication or other presentation of all current intelligence, including that which contains evaluated comment. It exercises substantive policy direction over the current intelligence support to other CIA Offices having a need.

SOVIET STRATEGY STAFF:

Under the direct control of the Intelligence Staff, the Soviet Strategy Staff analyzes and interprets intelligence indications of foreign capabilities and intentions affecting the security of the United States. It provides total support for CIA representation of the IAC Watch Committee.

Through continuing study of critical situations, it provides the Chief, Intelligence Staff, with hypotheses to be used for the direction of intelligence production. It guides the regional divisions in the development of all-source indicators relating to their particular geographic areas.

PUBLICATIONS BOARD:

The Publications Board receives from production divisions of OCI materials proposed for current intelligence publications, from which it selects, edits, and publishes, or otherwise issues appropriate current intelligence. It takes immediate action to issue critical items after coordination with the Intelligence Staff. It coordinates and administers established production controls over the activities of divisions producing current intelligence. It is responsible for the coordination of current intelligence assistance to other components of OCI, and other Offices of CIA.

GEOGRAPHIC DIVISION:

(NB: Within their respective areas of geographic cognizance, the functions set forth below apply equally to Soviet Division, Eastern Division, Near East/Africa Division, and Western Division.)

Each geographic division, within its area of cognizance, is responsible for production of current intelligence based upon all-source information, and containing appropriate evaluated comment. It analyzes incoming information, and evaluates and comments upon items of current importance and significance. Selectively it prepares and submits to the Publications Board items which are held to be suitable for inclusion in Current Intelligence publications. It provides all-source current intelligence assistance to Soviet Strategy Staff, Publications Board, Situation Room Division, and those other activities or Offices of CIA which may have need therefor. It provides qualified senior representation to the Publications Board or to the Situation Room for briefings. It initiates collection requirements for service upon the Special Support Division; and upon the advice and with the guidance of the Soviet Strategy Staff, it produces indicators germane to its particular area.

SITUATION ROOM DIVISION:

This division maintains, operates, and controls the use of the Situation Room. It prepares, displays, and maintains appropriate graphic portrayals of available intelligence of the highest degree of sensitivity, and produces such special maps, charts, or other graphic media as may be needed in support of current intelligence. In coordination with the Publications Board, it conducts all briefings and substantive intelligence presentations to the Director of Central Intelligence, the Deputy and Assistant Directors, and other qualified officials and intelligence officers. It operates a control desk for the selection of divisional intelligence officers to perform briefings. It provides sensitive graphic and cartographic materials for current intelligence publications. It maintains and controls a reading room for the use of qualified individuals.

FUNCTIONAL STATEMENT (Cont'd)

Area Divisions

(NB: Within their respective geographic areas, the functions set forth below apply equally to Soviet Division, Far East Division, Near East-Africa Division, and Western Division.)

Each area division is responsible for both spot and periodic production of all-source current intelligence from its area, supported by appropriate evaluated comment. It selects, prepares, and submits to the Publications Board items which are held to be suitable for issue as current intelligence, or which constitute indications intelligence. It collaborates with Indications Staff, Publications Board, Situation Room Division, and those other activities or Offices of CIA having competence or interest. It provides qualified senior representation to the Publications Board or to the Situation Room for briefings. It initiates information or intelligence requirements for service upon collection agencies through the Special Support Staff, and collaborates with Indications Staff to identify indications of current intentions of foreign powers.

USCIB Secretariat

OCI provides administrative and clerical personnel, office space, and logistic support for the USCIB Secretariat, in its function of providing continuity of executive, technical, and administrative service to the Board, and performs such other functions as the Board may direct.

OFFICE OF CURRENT INTELLIGENCE

Statement of Accomplishments and Objectives

General - The on-duty strength of OCI's work force continued levelling off. Simultaneously the volume of input of raw information increased 10%, and current intelligence produced as output increased 4%. This increased quantity of work done was attended by notable improvement in its quality, as well as by expansion in its use.

Major Accomplishments and Significant Developments During Fiscal Year 1955

Non-production activities including raw information processing and other support functions (information procurement, liaison, administration, requirements, registration, dissemination, and control of information from all sources, including the most sensitive) were conducted effectively and securely--the office experiencing a new low record for frequency of security violations. Of the 711,000 separate items of information received, COMINT and State Department material made up 80%. Approximately 27% of OCI's personnel strength was utilized in performing these various facilitating services.

Intelligence Production activities utilized approximately 73% of the on-duty work force. This force. This force, working upon an information input load 10% larger than last, produced 15,700 original pages of finished current intelligence compared with 15,000 pages for the previous year. Overtime increased approximately 100% over the previous year. Use of intelligence produced, reflected by dissemination requirements, increased by 20%. The volume of reproduction for publications increased 71%, or from 7 to 12 million pages for the year. In addition to routine written intelligence support, the Office provided intelligence support to Senior Representatives [REDACTED] and to NSC and the White House Staff in Washington.

Statement of Accomplishments and Objectives (Cont'd)

Objectives for Fiscal Year 1956 and the Status of the Current Program - by Activity

OCI objectives for its two major activities are:

- (1) To continue at present level the essential information processing (non-production) necessary to support intelligence production. These facilitating operations include activities of distribution, control, security, requirements, administrative support, sensitive intelligence staff support, and liaison.
- (2) To continue to improve the quality of current intelligence production, and to lend support and emphasis to the integration of indications intelligence into IAC warning of attack activities.

Program Outlook for Fiscal Year 1957

OCI's program for Fiscal Year 1957 contemplates a continuation of 1956 activities without substantial change.
